Position of the course

Students who wish to take this course must hold a meaningful/significant leadership position at UGent in the previous or current academic year. This means being a student representative on a council or body of UGent or being a board member of a student association recognised by UGent.

Students registering for this course should send an e-mail to the lecturer in charge before 1 October mentioning their leadership position at UGent and a brief description of the main responsibilities and (intended) achievements in this position.

The course aims to ...

... provide students with an overview of (recent) scientific research on leadership from different disciplines (HRM, business and organisational psychology, ...);

... strengthen students' leadership skills using applied workshops based on scientific research and

... make students reflect on their own leadership (skills).

This course is organised in cooperation with UGent @ Work, an interdisciplinary research consortium (IDC) aimed at realising impact with UGent research on work and the labour market.

Contents

A Inspirational component

- A.1 General evidence-based framework on leadership
- A.2 Recent scientific research on leadership from different fields (HRM, business and organisational psychology,...) with interdisciplinary guest lectures
- A.3 Testimonials from successful UGent alumni in leadership roles

B Deepening component

- B.1 Applied workshops. Choices (selection): negotiation techniques, coaching skills, change management, conflict mediation, ...

C Reflective component

- C.1 Drawing up analysis of current leadership or current leadership skills
- C.2 Reflection on insights from A and B that will be included in current leadership
- C.3 Reflection on insights from A and B that will be included in further career advancement

Initial competences

Holding a meaningful/significant leadership position at UGent in the previous or current academic year: student representatives on a council or body of UGent or being a board member of a student association recognised by UGent.

Final competences

- 1 Knowledge and understanding of essential theoretical frameworks concerning leadership
- 2 Basic understanding of research questions and results of state-of-the-art recent scientific research on leadership.
- 3 Being able to apply leadership skills through attending applied workshops.
- 4 Increased understanding of own leadership and/or leadership skills and how to use them in current leadership and/or future career.

Extra information on the teaching methods

A Inspirational component

- A.1 Lecture with general evidence-based framework on leadership.
- A.2 Lectures with recent scientific research on leadership. Students make syntheses of each lecture.
- A.3 Testimonials from successful UGent alumni holding leadership positions. Students make syntheses of each testimony.

B Deepening component

- B.1 Students choose workshops on leadership skills. These workshops are based on scientific research. Choices (selection): negotiation techniques, coaching skills, change management, conflict mediation,...
- Students apply the acquired skills in exercises and reflections.

C Reflective component.

- C.1–C.3 Independent work in which students (i) reflect on current leadership and/or current leadership skills based on A and B and (ii) how those reflections will be taken into account in current leadership and/or the future career. Intermediate reflections can be discussed with the class instructor and are ultimately presented to the group.
