Teaching languages

English, Dutch

Keywords

Research, medieval art, modern and contemporary art, photography, systematic music theory, performing arts

Position of the course

In-depth course in which students independently engage in research/collaborate in a research project and consider its valorisation. Students can choose to specialise via various options (subgroups or sessions), building on their previous specialisation or as an extension of it.

Certain modules may possibly be taught in English; specific information about this will be communicated via Ufora. In Research Seminar I or II, students preferentially choose the module of their supervisor or the most closely related field or topic (deviation from this is possible with good motivation or for language reasons).

Contents

Via different sessions, there is a choice of various (ca. 5), annually changing topics that match the expertise and any ongoing research projects of the various lecturers. These are usually in the fields of medieval art, modern and contemporary art, photography, systematic music theory, and the performing arts, or the interfaces between them.

Initial competences

Have acquired basic research competences, for example through the Research Skills I and II course units in the Bachelor of Arts programme, or related.

Final competences

1 Possess advanced knowledge of specific aspects of art, interior design, fashion, music or theatre history.

- 2 Be able to look up historical and contemporary studies on specific aspects of the history of art, interior design, fashion, music or theatre, incorporate them into one's own research, and present them.
- 3 Be able to carry out independent and group research on specific aspects of art, interior, fashion, textile, music or theatre history.
- 4 Be able to devise and develop a concept for making the research results public using a specific format.

Conditions for credit contract

Access to this course unit via a credit contract is unrestricted: the student takes into consideration the conditions mentioned in 'Starting Competences'
