Position of the course

This course offers an introduction to contemporary theories and research in the field of 'gender and diversity', with the objective of obtaining an analytical and critical insight into the social and cultural construction and representation of gender in relation to other forms of diversity, such as ethnicity, religion, sexuality, functional diversity, age, diversity in gender and the body, etc.

Contents

Introduction to gender studies, gender as an analytical concept and discussions on 'diversity' (lectures):

- overview of gender as an analytical concept at the level of the individual, the • • institutional and representation in the humanities;
- overview of the most important debates and developments in gender studies, like the equality/difference debate, sex/sexuality and gender, nature versus culture, intersectional theory, queer studies etc.

Reading of scholarly texts, together with lectures, interviews, documentaries, etc. and discussions on different domains (cases) in which gender and cultural diversity interact in various sociopolitical processes. For example:

- race, ethnicity, migration, racism, privilege;
- bodily diversity, variations in sex characteristics
- functional diversity, (dis)ability

- religion, secularism
- sexuality and sexual diversity
