Dutch literature, heuristics, methodology, research skills

Position of the course

This advanced course wants to provide the student with a thorough scientific insight into the specific characteristics of Dutch literary texts and the historical functions of literature. The course teaches students how to conduct a research on literary theory independently.

Contents

In introductory meetings, students get general information about heuristics, methodological issues and how to define a research question. Depending on that research question, the students are then divided into smaller groups, based on the period and the literary genre that is central to their research. During the meetings that follow, the students report on the progress of their research. The lecturers always provide advice in advance and feedback on the oral and written reports. The oral presentation and written assignment aim to strengthen research competences and academic language skills.

Initial competences

To have completed the courses Dutch Literature I-IV or to have acquired the necessary skills by other means.

Final competences

1 To be able to apply models while analysing texts and situating them in a historical and literary context

2 To be able to report on autonomously conducted research on literary research.

3 To be able to apply the methods of analysis of literary theory.

4 To have an excellent command of academic Dutch in written and spoken form.

5 The student can critically assess digital information sources for relevance, reliability and validity.

Conditions for credit contract

Access to this course unit via a credit contract is unrestricted: the student takes into consideration the conditions mentioned in 'Starting Competences'

Conditions for exam contract

This course unit cannot be taken via an exam contract

Teaching methods

Extra information on the teaching methods

Seminar: practical exercise in bibliographical research, formulating a research question, and determining an approach and structure for the research. This will be practiced with presentations in class and a written assignment. If generative artificial intelligence (GAI) is used, this should be done in a responsible way. During the lessons, what this means will be explained.
