Position of the course

Contents

The goal of the course is to expand basic linguistic concepts for use in construction grammar, a linguistic theoretical framework that prioritizes the description of the interaction between form and function/content. Construction grammar is a functionally oriented linguistic theory that takes a holistic view, considering language as a whole as a network of constructions. The course begins with an introduction and discussion of construction grammar as a theory, its background, key concepts and main areas of research, and then moves on to specific studies covering Swedish and Nordic material. Key concepts from cognitive linguistics and cognitive semantics are introduced to the extent that they are relevant to constructional analysis.

Initial competences

Students need to have a thorough knowledge of Swedish (B2 at the least) and have followed the introductory courses to Swedish linguistics.

Final competences

- 1 Be familiar with the main concepts and methods of Construction Grammar
- 2 Be able to use the tools of Construction Grammar to identify, examine, and characterize linguistic patterns
- 3 Be able to integrate form, meaning and function into linguistic analyses
- 4 Be able to apply these methods to material from Swedish and the Nordic languages
