Teaching languages

German

Keywords

German, literary studies, 18th century German literature

Position of the course

This advanced course helps students to become thoroughly proficient in German and to gain a strong linguistic awareness. The course offers a profound scientific insight in the specific characteristics of literary texts and shows the ways in which literature functions historically.

Contents

In this course, students are stimulated to reflect on the concrete ideology-critical and text-strategical problems in texts, also from older periods (18th century). Starting point, methodology and analyses are now strongly theoretically founded. Themes change every year (revolution, emancipation, anthropology, ...).

Initial competences

To have successfully completed the course German literature III or to have acquired the necessary skills by other means.

Final competences

- 1 To be able to put a thorough knowledge of German into practice.
- 2 To be able to apply thorough knowledge of German literary traditions while analysing literary texts and situating them in a historical and stylistic context.
- 3 To be able to put the tools of analysis into practice.
- 4 To be able to critically reflect on concrete ideology-critical and text-strategical problems from older periods (18th century).
- 5 To have a sound insight in literary theory and literary studies

Facilities for Working Students

- 1 Although attendance is highly desirable, working students may be exempted from attendance. Students can make use of extra learning materials on Ufora or of recordings of classes to reach the course goals. For those classes where active participation is evaluated (e.g., tutorials), you will need to complete a substitute task that demonstrates your attainment of the intended competencies. The substitute task will be communicated to you by the instructors.
- 2 The exam can be scheduled at a different time within the academic year.
- 3 You can receive feedback at times other than those designated, preferably through conversations (on campus or online), both during and after office hours, or via email. For all information on these facilities, be sure to contact the responsible instructor or one of the co-instructors.
