Teaching languages

German

Keywords

German, Old High German, Middle High German, Old Saxon, Middle Low German, Early New High German, historical development

Position of the course

The development of the German language since the beginning of textual transmission, also considering the historical development of Low German (Old Saxon, Middle Low German)

Contents

After a brief introduction to the historical background, the grammar (phonology, morphology and syntax) of each historical stage of High and Low German is discussed, as well as the diachronic processes connecting them.

The theoretical and encyclopedic knowledge will be applied and deepened in a small individual research task.

Students reading for an educational MA degree can work on the topic "Sprachgeschichte und Schule", for which findings from German language history are used to develop educational material to help understand better e.g. difficult grammatical topics like adjective agreement.

COVID-19 / new semester arrangement:

Also in 2022/23, the semester in the Master will be reduced from 12 to 10 weeks of teaching:

- Part of the content will be taught via recorded lessons.
- The classes in the last two weeks of term will be replaced by those recordings. This is intended to afford the students more time to finish their essays.

Initial competences

Competencies from the Bachelor degree:

1 Good written and spoken command of German

2 Familiarity with linguistic terminology

Final competences

- 1 Be able to recognise the structure and features of older stages of High and Low German
- 2 Describe the language history of High and Low German (language proficiency: orally and written)
- 3 Place the processes of language change in High and Low German in their Germanic context
- 4 Be able to read, understand, and translate also texts that were not previously discussed in class
- 5 Place also texts that were not previously discussed in class in their (language-)historical and transmissional context
- 6 Carry out a small individual corpus research and write about its results according to the scientific standards in the target language (language proficiency aspect: research skills, academic writing skills)

Conditions for credit contract

Access to this course unit via a credit contract is unrestricted: the student takes into consideration the conditions mentioned in 'Starting Competences'

Conditions for exam contract

This course unit cannot be taken via an exam contract

Teaching methods

Extra information on the teaching methods

COVID-19:

As a consequence of the Corona crisis the following adaptations will be implemented for the academic year 22-23:

- The content of the last two weeks of the semester will be taught online, by means of video tutorials. This measure is intended to create more time to finish the essay.

Extra information on the examination methods

Post-sessional evaluation: written exam (50%)

In-sessional evaluation: independent exercises & short paper (c. 2000 words) (50%)

Calculation of the examination mark

50% post-sessional evaluation

50% in-sessional evaluation

Important:

If the student does not pass the in-sessional assessment, a second opportunity is offered through a compensatory activity between the first and second exam periods.

If the student does not participate in the in-sessional OR postsessional evaluation, or has less than 10/20 for one of the evaluations, they can no longer pass the course as a whole. In case the average of the final score is equal to or higher than 10/20, the average is reduced to the highest non-passing grade (=9).

Facilities for Working Students

1. Possible exemption from certain educational activities requiring student attendance
 2. Possible rescheduling of the examination to a different time in the same academic year
 3. Feedback can be given by email, telephone or by appointment
