Keywords

Archaeology, Art history, Classical Antiquity, Greece, Rome, Etruria

Position of the course

This introductory course is part of the course package 'Domain-specific knowledge: Chronological Overviews', which aims to provide a fairly complete spectrum of archeology offered by the course. In this case, the course aims to provide a global overview of Classical Mediterranean archeology and art (Greece and Rome, including Etruria).

Contents

Chronologically and thematically structured overview of the archaeological legacy of the ancient cultures of the Mediterranean area from the Minoan period to Late Roman Antiquity, with an eye for the use of sources and historical criticism. Within this course, the archaeology of this period and this region is approached from an archaeological and art-historical perspective.

Initial competences

Have a standard language knowledge (Dutch, English, French and German)

Final competences

- 1 To have an insight into the main themes of the material heritage of Greece, Rome and Etruria.
- 2 To recognize the importance of historical contextualisation.
- 3 To have insight into the main art historical production of Greek, Roman and Etruscan civilisation, and to recognize parallels and differences between them.
- 4 To understand the importance of art historical continuity with later periods.
- 5 To recognize the basic themes of classical archaeology
