Teaching languages

Keywords

Historical sources; languages; analysis.

Position of the course

Analysis of historical in French (this is the first module, mandatory for all students) and in another language students can choose (this is the second module: Latin, Greek, older Dutch, older English, Spanish and German). These choices have to be made via Ufora at the beginning of the semester. The choice for the second module is free, there are no limitations as to the number of students in each module.

Contents

Students learn to analyse and to understand historical texts in French (15th-20th century) and in another language (Latin, Greek, older Dutch, older English, Spanish, German). The texts that will be read are original sources, in the original language. They will be made available in a modern edition, not in handwriting.

Initial competences

For this course a reasonable (passive) knowledge is required of the languages in which the texts will be read.

Final competences

- 1 Have the specific expertise required for reading historical sources in French and in the second language the student has chosen.
- 2 Have insight into the methodology of history.
- 3 Have basic knowledge of the diverse sources and scientific literature for use in historical research and the specialist skills requisite to reading and interpreting sources.
- 4 To have the ability to participate actively in group discussions (also in another language than Dutch) and to communicate the results of historical research to both experts and peers in a clearly structured oral presentation, in a clear and academically correct language.

Conditions for credit contract

Access to this course unit via a credit contract is unrestricted: the student takes into consideration the conditions mentioned in 'Starting Competences'

Conditions for exam contract

Access to this course unit via an exam contract is unrestricted

Teaching methods

Seminar, Lecture, Independent work

Extra information on the teaching methods

The compulsory French module is taught in the form of a tutorial, i.e. the students are expected to prepare the texts (about ten in total) and to actively participate during the lessons. One text will be treated via an extensive, pre-recorded video lecture, which will replace two physical lessons.

Also for the elective modules, students are expected to prepare the texts and actively participate in the lessons.

Assisted self-tuition: students have to prepare a part of each text that will be treated by themselves. For this they can rely on the help of the lecturers.

Seminar: coached exercises during lectures.

Learning materials and price

The texts will be made available online at the beginning of the semester (Ufora).

Extra information on the examination methods

A module accounts for 50% of the total score of this course. For the French module there will be two written exams, each on half of the points. The first written exam will be organised in the middle of the first semester (this is the non-periodical evaluation). The second written exam - the periodical evaluation - will take place in the evaluation period following the first semester, in January. For the other modules there will be only one (periodical) evaluation, during the exam period in January.

Calculation of the examination mark

In order to pass this course, one has to obtain for each part (i.e. the mandatory French module and the second, chosen module) at least 4/10, and for both modules together at least 10/20. If the first condition isn't met, the final result will be reduced to 9/20 or less. Two concrete examples will illustrate this: (a) if you obtain a 7/10 for the first module and a 3/10 for the second one, you will have 9/20 as final result (even if the sum of both grades is higher); (b) if you obtain a 3/10 for the first module and a 5/10 for the second one, your final result will be 8/20.

Participation in all the exams of the two modules is compulsory.

Facilities for Working Students

Facilities:

- 1 Possible exemption from educational activities requiring student attendance
- 2 Possible rescheduling of the examination to a different time in the same academic year
- 3 Feedback can be given during an appointment during or after office hours.
