Position of the course

This course aims at the acquisition of advanced, theory-based scientific insights in literary translation. This course aims at students interested in the methods and concepts of literary translation.

Exchange students with a bachelor degree may take this course. Knowledge of Dutch is not required.

Contents

This course - organized in co-operation with the Vrije Universiteit Brussel (VUB) - is conceived as a hybrid seminar series (partly online, partly on-campus) on the theory of literary translation in which major theoretical texts will be read and discussed. They reflect on both influential views on translation in different phases of European cultural history and on the more recent trends toward the ideology and ethics of literary translation. The linguistic, cognitive, sociological, and cultural aspects of literary translation will be at the center of our theoretical discussions. The lectures will be delivered by several experts in Translation Studies from Ghent University and the University of Brussels.

In focusing on the above subjects, the seminar will be subdivided into three major thematic parts: 1) Conceptual foundations of theoretical thinking on literary translation (Free/Literal Translation; Author/Authorship and Translation; Memory and Translation); 2) Translation and Society (Sociology of Translation; Censorship and Translation; Centre/Periphery and Translation); 3) Case Studies, in which students will be introduced into applying specific translational methods and theories onto specific cases of translated texts.

Through blended learning, students will be given the opportunity to acquire competences within the field of Translation Studies and Literary Translation. One practical workshop will be dedicated to poetry translation.

Initial competences

A bachelor's degree in Linguistics and Literature, Applied Language Studies or Languages and Cultures, or to have acquired the necessary skills by other means. Exchange students should be aware that this is a course with a master's profile which requires academic writing skills.

Final competences

- 1 To be familiar with and able to critically reflect on pivotal texts of translation theory and on key concepts, issues and theories of literary translation
- 2 To be familiar with the history of theory on literary translation and the development of theoretical thinking in the field.
- 3 To be able to critically analyze source texts and reflect on the intricate relation between source text and target text
- 4 To gain insight into culture-specific (German, French, Anglo-American...) traditions in the theoretical conceptualization of literary translation
- 5 To acquire knowledge of linguistic, textual, cultural and ideological issues related to literary translation.
- 6 To assess theoretical models in relation to literary translation in the broadest sense.
