Keywords

South and East Asian culture, Japan, China, India

Position of the course

Based on several topics of the South and East Asian cultural traditions provided by internal and external expertise, insight is gained in the cultural, philosophical, social, and historical context of South and East Asia, with attention being paid to the relevant methodology.

Contents

A general overview of different research fields of cultural evolutions in South and East Asia is offered. These evolutions are placed against their historical, philosophical and social backgrounds. Emphasis is put on the relevant methodology and research results. Relevant scholarly literature is introduced. Each research field also presents a reader. The student selects two readers for the written examination.

Initial competences

Knowledge of the history of South and East Asia, and methodological skills at BA level are recommended.

Final competences

- 1 To possess specialized knowledge with respect to a number of specific topics from the South and East Asian cultural traditions placed against a historical, philosophical and social background
- 2 To have a thorough insight into methodological problems in connection with one or more topics from the South and East Asian cultural traditions
- 3 To be able to deal with cultural research areas and to understand relevant scientific literature.
- 4 To be able to develop a critical approach of current theories and insights regarding the South and East Asian cultural areas.

5 To be able to elaborate a well-argued opinion with respect to South and East Asian cultural traditions set against their historical, philosophical and social backgrounds.
