Position of the course

The main aim of the course is to introduce master students to the opportunities and challenges of ancient historical research-in-progress. Such a confrontation with research 'in action' should help students to reflect on the formulation of proper research questions, the selection of appropriate methodologies and theoretical frameworks, and the critical analysis of relevant sources, types of reflection in which they will constantly have to engage throughout their MA program as they work on their own MA theses.

Contents

This MA course rotates amongst researchers affiliated with the research group Ancient History, focuses on ongoing research project(s) in which they are engaged. The topic of the course is adapted accordingly. The topic for 2024-2025 will be 'Social conflicts in the Greek cities', from the Archaic Period to the Roman Empire.

Initial competences

The student possesses all the final competences formulated in the bachelor curriculum in History of Ghent University.

Final competences

- 1 To have the ability to use advanced insights into historical conceptual frameworks (also in another language than Dutch) to analyse and evaluate new and complex ideas.
- 2 To have general insight into the field's literature (also in another language than Dutch), and the ability to use sources (also in another language than Dutch) in an original and creative way.
- 3 To have the ability to critically analyse and make original use of current national and international scientific debates in the field of history (also in another language than Dutch).
- 4 To have the ability to present the results of one's own historical research, to both experts and peers, in a clearly structured oral presentation, in a clear and academically correct language.

Teaching methods

Seminar, Lecture, Peer teaching

Extra information on the teaching methods

The lecturer offers an introduction to the topic of the course and the research that is currently being carried out in the field. The topic is then further elaborated in a series of seminars. Students prepare for the seminars by reading source texts and secondary literature. Students then take turns in presenting a case study, engaging in dialogue with their fellow students and the lecturer (microteaching).
