Keywords

History of Religions, Judaism, Jewish traditions, rituals, currents, Bible, Biblical Interpretation.

Position of the course

This course wants to help students to gain insight into the complex relationship between Judaism as a religion and the Jewish people, and to acquire insight into the nature and evolution of Judaism as a religion, and its effect on written texts. The courses also familiarises students with the most important sources and hermeneutical methodologies.

Contents

This course offers an introduction to judaism, as a religion and as a demographic group, as a way of life based upon the Hebrew Bible, the development of monotheism, the combination of ritualism and religious ethics. The Hebrew Bible, and the main points it entails, the currents within judaism through its history, their place in history, and meaning in the modern dimension of judaism are discussed. The course also deals with spirituality, the most important religious feasts and rituals of the Jewish religion (throughout its history).

Initial competences

No specific requirements.

Final competences

1 To have knowledge of and insight in the most important historical developments of judaism in all its diversity.

- 2 To be able to recognize and situate the most important Jewish authors and schools/traditions.
- 3 To be able to reproduce the most important tenets of these Jewish authors and schools/traditions and to have insight into their interaction with the general social and historical developments.
- 4 To have knowledge of the most important rituals and feasts and to have insight in their meaning.
- 5 To have knowledge of the development of the Hebrew Bible, the emergence of the canon, and the most important currents in Biblical interpretation.
- 6 To be able to interpret Jewish texts from a broad cultural and historical perspective.
- 7 To be able to indicate the most important parallels with and differences between other religions, both abrahamic and non-abrahamic.
