Teaching languages

Afrikaans, Dutch

Keywords

Afrikaans linguistics and Afrikaans literature, in a dialogue with other languages and literatures of South Africa; history, politics, society and culture

Position of the course

This course is part of the Master program Linguistics and Literature. Only students who have attended the introductory course Afrikaans: taal- en letterkunde can sign in for this mastercourse.

Contents

The course deals with the languages and literatures of South Africa, with a special focus on Afrikaans and the relations between Afrikaans and the other languages and literatures of the area.

Students are expected to actively contribute to the preparation of classes: preparatory reading tasks, presentations of a case, brief report on a reading experience, etc.

In addition, students are expected to attend the colloquium on "Horizons of political/poetical contestation: Zuid-Afrikaanse intersectionele perspectieven over disciplines en talen heen" on 20-21 November.

Initial competences

The course is exclusively accessible for students who have attended the introductory course Afrikaans: taal- en letterkunde or obtained equivalent competencies.

Final competences

- 1 To have a good understanding of the complex language situation in South Africa and the relations between Afrikaans and the other languages of the area, past and present.
- 2 To have a good understanding of the way in which selected themes and topics function and are represented in the South-African literature, with a special focus on literature in Afrikaans.
- 3 Being able to apply the acquired methodological knowledge in a research assignment on languages and literatures of South Africa
- 4 Being able to report orally and in writing and to give a presentation of an individual assignment
- 5 Being able to communicate efficiently on subjects belonging to the study of languages and literatures of South Africa

Extra information on the examination methods

Students write (i) a longer paper (2500 à 3000 words) on a topic of their choice that relates to the topics discussed in the lectures and (ii) a shorter paper (+/- 1,500 words) providing a critical reflection on one or more of the papers presented at the colloquium.

There is an oral exam in which students discuss their papers with the evaluators and may be asked to provide further detail on any aspect the evaluators may have questions about (e.g. methodological choices made, sources consulted, details of argumentation). In addition, they may be asked to relate the topic(s) of their papers to other issues addressed in the lectures.

Students may use GenAI-application in the writing process, but they remain fully responsible for the form and content of their papers and will have to show themselves able of providing further detail during the oral exam, as detailed above. In addition, there is a score for participation, on the basis of the active participation of students in class and the quality of their contributions to class discussions.

Calculation of the examination mark

- 30 % longer paper
- 20 % short colloquium paper
- 30% oral exam
- 20 % participation
