Internship, work field

Position of the course

Students learn to link knowledge and insights, built up in the theoretical and thematic courses of the master's programme, to practical experience.

Students who opt for a long internship (10 ECTS) are, in contrast to a short internship, actively working for a longer period (6 weeks) in a company, institution or organisation, where they work on a specific project, a specific research, or write a policy report.

The emphasis of the internship is on the student's independence.

The internship can only start if there is an internship agreement between the internship organisation and Ghent University.

See internship manual for additional information and mandatory procedure.

Contents

The internship is a first introduction to the professional field and offers students the opportunity to gain practical experience during their studies. In the long internship, this means that the students actively participate in the operation or activities of the organisation or institution. This means that they work or collaborate on a specific project, carry out a specific research or write a policy-supporting report. The internship thus aims to further refine and deepen the acquired knowledge and skills through a practical professional experience.

The students will further develop their learned skills and attitudes. Under the guidance of a mentor, they become competent in one or more issues related to gender and/or diversity.

At the end of the internship, the students write an internship report based on gender and diversity theoretical frameworks.

Initial competences

The students are sufficiently critically reflexive and have an extensive insight into gender and diversity theoretical frameworks.

The internship may not end before the three compulsory programme courses have been completed.

Final competences

- 1 Ability to quickly settle into the organisation.
- 2 Ability to function independently within the organisation, within the opportunities offered to do so.
- 3 Clearly communicate information, ideas, problems and solutions within gender and diversity topics to specialists and non-specialists in the organisation.
- 4 Complete internship assignments for the organisation independently.
- 5 Connecting practice-based themes and experiences to theoretical insights in gender and diversity studies.
- 6 Develop and communicate a reflective, gender and diversity sensitive and critical stance.
- 7 Ability to reflect and report on the substantive and practical aspects of the internship in an academic style in the form of an internship report.
- 8 When applicable, use generative AI tools responsibly in written internship assignments and the internship report.

Teaching methods

Lecture, Independent work, Work placement, Peer teaching

Extra information on the teaching methods

The following teaching methods are used:

- Lectures: during the start day, general information is given about the goal and the course of the internship. Subsequently, specific practical questions by the students are answered about national and international internships.
- Internship in work placement (180h).
- Microteaching: students present their internship content and progress and give each other feedback during (live/online) peer-to-peer moments in small groups.
- Independent work refers to setting up and developing one or more specific internship assignments, keeping the logbook and writing the internship report.

Assessment moments

continuous assessment

Examination methods in case of periodic assessment during the first examination period

Examination methods in case of periodic assessment during the second examination period

Examination methods in case of permanent assessment

Professional practice, Assignment

Possibilities of retake in case of permanent assessment examination during the second examination period is possible

Extra information on the examination methods

The assessment is based on an internship report (60%) and the evaluation of by mentor at the internship organisation (40%).

Calculation of the examination mark

Two marks count for the final evaluation:

1. The professional practice counts for 40% of the final grade (see assessment criteria in the internship manual).
2. The internship report count for 60% of the final grade (see assessment criteria in the internship manual).

If students obtain less than 10/20 for at least one of the components, passing the course unit as a whole is no longer possible. If the total score does turn out to be a mark of 10 or more out of twenty, this is reduced to the highest fail mark (9/20). Students who eschew one or more parts of the assessment can no longer obtain a pass mark for the course unit. Should the final mark be higher than 7/20, it will be reduced to the highest non-tolerable mark (i.e. 7/20).

Facilities for Working Students

Under certain conditions, working students may qualify for:

- an internship at their own workplace, but in an other department, if the current job description contains none or insufficiently demonstrable gender and diversity assignments (see internship manual for conditions).
