Arabic grammar, introduction to the study of Arabic texts

Position of the course

This course continues Introduction to Arabic Language Acquisition I-II and provides an introduction to the study of Arabic texts and the structures of the Arabic language. It is also an in-depth study of the courses Introduction to the History of Islamic West Asia (600-1800) and Introduction to Islam and Being a Muslim. This course introduces the student to the rich corpus of (pre-modern) Arabic texts in its most diverse forms, both thematically, geographically and chronologically, with due attention to the wide range of genres.

Contents

The course consists of two components: text structures and language structures.

- Various simple texts from the Arab cultural heritage are analyzed in text structures. The selected fragments come from, among others, the Koran, the frame story of 1001 Nights, the story cycle of Kalila & Dimna and the travel literature of Ibn Battuta. In addition, attention is paid to the religious, literary, historical and social context from which these texts originate.
- Language structures discuss the (study of the) structure of the Arabic language in more detail.

written exam + participation

Calculation of the examination mark

Text structures: 70 %

Language structures: 30 %

Both components are subdivided into end-of-term evaluation and continuous assessment (active participation during classes, and tests and assignments).

Students who do not participate in (one of the parts of) the assessment, or have a mark below 10/20 for one of the assessed components, automatically fail the entire course. Final marks higher than 10/20 will, in this case, be reduced to the highest mark that does not qualify for automatic upgrade ('deliberation') (9/20).

A pass mark for one of the assessed components means that the assessment of that component does not need to be retaken in case of a resit (only!). Students are nevertheless free to decide to retake it.

Facilities for Working Students

1. Student attendance is compulsory.
2. The examination cannot be rescheduled.
3. Feedback can be given by email, telephone or during an appointment during office hours.
