Keywords

American literature, historical survey, highlights from the American literary canon

Position of the course

The aim of this course is to introduce students, via a historical survey, to some of the highlights from the literary history of the United States.

Position of the course in terms of language proficiency: In the third year of the bachelor programme in English, students are expected to further consolidate a C1 level of proficiency ("Expert"/"Effective operational" proficiency).

Exchange students can enrol for this course, provided they meet the requirements stipulated in this document. No knowledge of Dutch is required for this course.

Contents

General introductory lectures on the history of American literature alternate with more interactive sessions on specific literary texts dating from the periods under discussion. The analyses of these texts could focus, for example, on the literary and sociological characteristics that are typical of a certain historical period, or on those features that characterize certain ethnic forms of literature in the US.

Initial competences

To have completed "English Literature I" and "English Literature II" or to have acquired the necessary skills by other means.

To master English at an initial C1 level (i.e. C1.1, First stage of "Expert"/"Effective operational" proficiency).

Final competences

- 1 Possess a literary-historical grasp of American literature that is in tune with literary-historical and cultural-historical components of the English program in particular, and the Ba-program, in general.
- 2 formulate critical insights about literary texts, possibly with the support of Gen AI
- 3 have insight in the history and distinctive features of American literature
- 4 situate literary works in their historical and cultural context
- 5 provide in-depth analyses of literary works in grammatically correct and stylistically appropriate English
- 6 grasp the formal and generic conventions of poetry, drama and prose fiction

Conditions for credit contract

Access to this course unit via a credit contract is determined after successful competences assessment

Conditions for exam contract

Access to this course unit via an exam contract is unrestricted
