Position of the course

ALW builds on and deepens two Ba1-courses: Europese Talen in Contact partim Letterkunde en Inleiding tot de voornaamste moderne literaturen. The course aims to familiarise students with concepts and issues central to the literary-theoretical and comparative study of literary texts from different periods, genres and regions. This course corresponds to the aims of the different curricula, particularly those of a bachelor in literature.

Contents

A survey of the concepts and issues central to the comparative study of literature from different periods, genres or regions.

Part 1 is both a theoretical-conceptual and a literary-historical exploration of the concept of fiction and related concepts throughout European narrative literature. Part 2 emphasises the comparative study of narrative genres from a historical perspective (tragedy, adventure stories, novel of emergence and idyll in their historical manifestations and in their aftereffects on contemporary popular narrative culture).

Initial competences

Knowledge of the terminology of literary analysis.

Final competences

- 1 To have a sound, scholarly understanding of the specific characteristics of literary texts.
- 2 To be able to implement various methods of analysis for the study of narratives.
- 3 To be able to explain the use of various methods of analysis in a broad historical, social, cultural, and philosophical context.
- 4 To be able to enter more advanced courses in the Master Comparative Literature and the language-specific masters.
- 5 To be able to reflect critically about the connections between texts from various periods, genres, and areas
