Position of the course

This course aims at acquainting the students with scientific research into and the practice of translation revision, which is a crucial step in the translation process, ensuring the quality of the translation in relation to the source text and comparable target texts. To that end, an overview of scientific insights is provided which will help students to develop and enhance revision competences.

Contents

This course consists of four parts. The first part addresses the specific status of revision in comparison to editing, post-editing, reviewing, self-control; additionally, several revision principles, -parameters, -procedures, -competences, and -quality are presented. Special attention is paid to the European norm 15038 and the ISO norm 17100:2015, as well as to the use of translation tools and documentation.

The second part provides an overview of the scientific research into translation revision, including revision competence and quality. This part aims at developing and enhancing the revision competence of the student via the insights of scientific research.

The third part of the course consists of specific, realistic revision exercises (from a variety of genres, using various translation tools), based on the knowledge, skills, methods, strategies and tools provided in the preceding parts and in previous courses on Dutch written proficiency and revision. Crucially, students learn to appreciate the positive effects of metacognition, revision routines and collaboration on revision.

The fourth part of the course focuses on recent developments in translation practice.

Initial competences

The student speaks Dutch as his/her mother tongue (or has equivalent knowledge of Dutch), and has acquired the general competences that may be expected from an academic bachelor.

Final competences

- 1 Translate and revise general and specialized texts from two foreign languages into Dutch (and vice versa).
- 2 can apply the principles of orientation on the job market and job application in specific situations
- 3 Have advanced knowledge about the scientific study of specific terminology and principles of term management.
- 4 Function effectively as translator in a multidisciplinary and international environment, both independent and in team, with attention for process management.
- 5 Apply advanced contrastive linguistic knowledge on different levels(lexical, grammatical, textual, pragmatic) during translation.
- 6 Apply advanced encyclopedic, thematic, cultural and intercultural knowledge during translation.
- 7 Use classical and electronic resources and specific technological resources during translation.

8 Apply the acquired knowledge of the translation market and the deontology during translation.
