Position of the course

The course unit "Russian : Specialized Translation Practice" (R4GV) aims to teach students to translate texts from Russian into Dutch and vice-versa. The students also learn to familiarize themselves with new specialized domains.

The Russian-Dutch translation classes focus on specialized scientific and technical texts as well as literary texts.

The Dutch-Russian translation classes focus on improving students' proficiency in Russian and applying those skills in written translation and spontaneous text production. The main emphasis is on legal and economic texts.

Contents

The course unit "Russian: Specialized Translation" is thematically structured. Students translate texts from a variety of domains and analyze their specific stylistic characteristics.

The texts translated from Russian into Dutch are of a scientific/technical and literary nature.

The Dutch-Russian translation classes strongly focus on post-editing, the use of translation tools and analysis of automatic translations.

The translations are discussed in class.
