Position of the course

The course aims at:

- the acquisition of a thorough understanding of and research experience in a specific genre, author, period, or problem from Ancient Greek literature; the less canonical literature from the imperial period is covered extensively;
- a deepening of the knowledge and skills acquired during the bachelor's degree, including actively participating in critical discussions about primary and secondary literature, applying different literary theories and methods to Ancient Greek texts, and understanding, interpreting, and presenting Ancient Greek texts using professional tools.

Contents

The course targets research-oriented discussion and analysis of selected texts from Ancient Greek literature. Detailed analysis is preceded by one or more theoretical introductory lectures. At least one lecture is taught by a guest speaker with research experience in the theme of the course.

Theme 2026-2027: Greek biography and fiction theory

We cover the history of the biographical genre and problematize the concepts of 'fiction', 'fictionality' and 'truth' in this genre. Both ancient and contemporary theoretical approaches to these concepts are addressed. The focus is on reading and analyzing various examples from Ancient Greek literature, from the classical period to the early Middle Ages.

Initial competences

A good knowledge of the Greek language and a clear understanding of the main genres in Greek literature, as acquired during the bachelor training programme.

Final competences

- 1 Applying literary theories and methods to the analysis of Ancient Greek texts.
- 2 Acquiring a broad knowledge of and familiarity with classical literature from various (also non-canonical) genres and periods.
- 3 Collaborating with fellow students.
- 4 Understanding, interpreting and presenting Ancient Greek texts to an academic audience, making use of appropriate professional tools.
- 5 Presenting personal research findings orally.
- 6 Participating actively in critical discussions of primary and secondary literature.

Examination methods in case of periodic assessment during the second examination period

Oral assessment

Examination methods in case of permanent assessment

Participation, Presentation, Peer and/or self assessment

Possibilities of retake in case of permanent assessment examination during the second examination period is possible in modified form

Extra information on the examination methods

The student attends and actively contributes to the lectures and seminars (preparatory reading, taking notes, participation in class discussions, micro-teaching).

The student delivers a 20-minute oral research presentation on a topic of choice from a list of selected topics. The student can choose one of two formats for this presentation: academic and popularizing. Both formats are explained during one of the seminars.

During the oral assessment, the student's understanding and individual processing of the material covered in the lectures and seminars will be assessed (no reproduction of knowledge).

For the research presentation, generative AI may be used to (1) compile a bibliography, (2) help structure arguments, and (3) edit the presentation. Appropriate use of AI will be further trained and defined during one of the seminars.

Calculation of the examination mark

- 1) continuous assessment - participation in lectures and seminars: 20%
- 2) continuous assessment - research presentation: 50%
- 3) end-of-term assessment - oral assessment: 30%

Facilities for Working Students

Facilities:

- 1 Possible exemption from certain educational activities requiring student attendance
- 2 Possible rescheduling of the examination to a different time in the same academic year
- 3 Feedback available following appointment during office hours
