Position of the course

The study unit "English Grammar B" (E1SB) forms part of the course, because knowledge of grammar is an essential aspect of learning a foreign language. Along with "English: Grammar A"(E1SA), it is taught in the first Bachelor year as a solid foundation for the other English study units in the same year and the rest of the programme with a view to maintaining the course's horizontal and vertical coherence. The study unit seeks to further extend the knowledge of the verb phrase and the Basics component, following on from the study unit "English: Grammar A". In addition, attention is paid to conditionals, passives, causative constructions and complex Noun phrases. Students get an introduction to corpus research with an assignment and a reading assignment on linguistic phenomena.

Exchange students may take up this course unit, for which no prior knowledge of Dutch is required.

Contents

The study unit "English Grammar B" (EISB) covers those topics in the discussion on the Verb Phrase that were not yet discussed in "English: Grammar A", i.e. the future, the passive voice, the conditional and causatives. EISB also elaborates on the components covered in Basics, with specific attention being paid to complex NPs. Aspects of grammar are also further explored via a reading assignment and corpus research tasks that focuses on language varieties, language variation and lexico-grammar.

Initial competences

Students should have a B1/B2 level of English according to the common European framework.

Final competences

- 1 Having a basic command of English grammar rules with regard to morphology and the expression of present, past and future time in English. [B12; assessed]
- 2 Having a basic command of English grammar rules with regard the formation and use of passive, conditional and causative structures. [B12; assessed]
- 3 Recognising and interpreting English syntactic structures with special attention to contrastive comparison with the Dutch language. [B13; assessed]
- 4 Having a strong language awareness. [B31; not assessed]
- 5 Critically reflecting on their own thinking, learning, decisions and actions. [B33; not assessed]
- 6 Displaying intellectual curiosity and a lifelong learning attitude. [B34; not assessed]
- 7 Recognising and interpreting language variation in the English language, especially with regard to grammatical aspects. [B13; assessed]
- 8 Answering exam questions in correct English. [B63; assessed]

Teaching methods

Seminar, Independent work

Extra information on the teaching methods

Seminar: on the basis of this interactive teaching method students acquire and apply the basic grammar rules of English based on examples and exercises. Seminars include fill-out exercises, complemented with translation exercises which underscore the differences between English and Dutch. Students work in teams and confer with each other. Answers are systematically explained and linked to the theory. Students also need to justify their answers by using the metalanguage that is offered.

Self-reliant study activities: a set of exercises which need to be prepared in advance, followed by general and individual feedback.

Students also submit online assignments with examples of grammatical phenomena. In addition, students also get a reading and corpus assignment on grammatical topics related to the contents of the course. Intermediary feedback is provided. Topics covered in the assignment are integrated in the exam.
