Position of the course

English Language Practice B builds on E1SA and E1PA, and integrates knowledge required for E1SB. It covers the four basic language skills (reading, listening, writing, speaking) and grammatical translation into English:

- writing skills practice seeks to develop essential writing skills (e.g. paragraphing, cohesion, grammatical and lexical control) by having students write in a range of genres including expository essay, review and précis.
- speaking skills practice seeks to help students to develop fluency, accuracy and range in formal and informal speaking contexts.
- translation practice from Dutch into English aims to foster students' awareness and idiomatic use of the English language, in order to avoid possible grammatical and lexical pitfalls when translating word-for-word from Dutch into English.
- the course reading (reader and reading list) is intended as a means to practise and hone students' reading and critical thinking skills, while introducing them to various cultural aspects of the English-speaking world.

Exchange students are offered a choice between two options: 1. They can take up the writing and speaking modules E1PB_SC (50%) and E1PB_SP (50%) together, worth 3 credits. No prior knowledge of Dutch is required for these modules. 2. They can take up a more extensive version of E1PB_SC (50%) and E1PB_SP (50%) which is worth 5 credits. No prior knowledge of Dutch is required for these modules

Contents

The study unit English Language Practice B (E1PB) consists of the following components:

- reading and writing skills (E1PB_SC)
- speaking skills (E1PB_SP)
- translation Dutch-English (E1PB_NE)

E1PB_SC: the Writing component is underpinned by the idea that students best develop their skills by actively writing. Essential writing competence (e.g. note-taking, planning, rephrasing, paragraph structure, cohesion and register awareness) is fostered by having students write a range of text types, including review, expository essay and précis. As part of this process students are encouraged to critically examine and discuss their work with others. Writing tasks may be linked to students' reading (course reader and reading list) and form the basis for speaking activities in the Speaking component.

E1PB_SP: presentation and discussion assignments explore and train a broad range of active verbal language skills including lexical range and accuracy, expressive intonation, consistency in use of preferred variety and clarity of expression. The stress is on developing the ability to speak at length and with accuracy, range and precision in formal and informal contexts. Some speaking activities will be linked to a student's reading, and assignments in the Writing component.

E1PB_NE: Sentences and short general texts are translated, paying attention to the contrast between Dutch and English with respect to idiomatic expressions, spelling, vocabulary and grammar
