French, specialised translation practice

Position of the course

The course unit "French: specialised translation 2" pursues the following objectives:

- 1 The students learn to analyse, contextualise, translate and revise a varied range of specialised (mainly legal) texts. Sufficient attention is also paid to the general French-Dutch translation competences.
- 2 The students are able to reflect in a critical, scientific (translation studies) manner on the practice and theory of specialised (or legal) translation.
- 3 The students have notions of the professional field and the market of specialised (or legal) translation.

Contents

The course mainly consists of the following parts:

- Introduction to (1) the importance and specific expectations of the (legal) professional field; (2) the composition of the (legal) translation market and the field of (legal) translation; (3) classical and electronic resources.
- Translation exercises that are (1) prepared on the basis of a parallel corpus; (2) supported by a contextualisation and analysis of the text to be translated; (3) revised in class and individually.
- Analysis and discussion of scientific literature regarding translation studies (specialised translation).

Initial competences

The student:

- is able to analyse French texts of above-average difficulty in line with professional practice

- and translate/revise them under supervision;
- is able to produce French texts of above average difficulty as they appear in the professional context, both from instructions and from existing primary text material;
- is able to use the heuristic tools relevant to both competences in an adequate and critical manner.

Final competences

- 1 The student masters French at the CEFR C2 level for reading [MV.1.1] [assessed]
- 2 Students have advanced knowledge of institutional and legal contexts of the French and Dutch speaking areas [MV.1.2] [not assessed]
- 3 Students can look up and manage specialised (or legal) terminology [MV.1.5; MV.6.4] [not assessed]
- 4 Students can adequately translate specialised (or legal) texts from French into Dutch [MV.6.1] [assessed]
- 5 Students can justify translation choices based on scientific arguments [MV.3.2] [not assessed]
- 6 Students can apply advanced contrastive linguistic knowledge while translating [MV.6.2] [assessed]
- 7 Students can adequately apply the acquired legal knowledge while translating [MV.6.3] [not assessed]
- 8 Students can make adequate use of resources and technological tools while translating [MV.6.4] [not assessed]
- 9 Students are able to reflect in a critical and scientific (translation studies) way on the practice and theory of specialised (or legal) translation [MV 2.1] [assessed]
