Position of the course

The main aim of this study unit is to train students in recognizing and remediating mistakes concerning lexicon, grammar and style. It builds on competences acquired in the Dutch courses of the previous bachelor years. Although the orientation is mainly practical (correct application of the rules concerning lexicon, grammar and style when revising texts), it also provides a theoretical basis, thus enabling the student to reflect on problems and suggest solutions.

Contents

The study unit consists of a systemic review of grammatical, lexical and stylistic mistakes described in the slides, combined with a non-systemic review of mistakes, addressed during the revision of texts. It also covers the possibilities and limitations of different types of dictionaries and other instruments that are at the translator's/revision's disposal.

Initial competences

The final objectives of the different Dutch units of study of the second bachelor year.

Final competences

- 1 Write Dutch-language texts at the level of a professional native speaker. [B.1.1 without test]
- 2 Revise lexical and grammatical structures of Dutch with attention to contrastive aspects Dutch-foreign language. [B.1.3 with test].
- 3 Revise complex compound sentences into a readable whole. [B.1.3 with test].
- 4 Make accurate choices between standard language forms and forms perceived as non-standard (influence of dialect, foreign languages, etc.). [B.1.31 with test]
- 5 Correct written Dutch texts for grammatical, lexical, pragmatic and stylistic features. [B.6.1 with test]
- 6 Independently revise Dutch texts from the professional context (esp. business world, government services) at the microstructural level. [B.6.1 with test]
- 7 Revise Dutch texts taking into account the purpose and intended audience. [B.6.1 with review]
- 8 Use the most appropriate dictionaries, reference works and electronic resources efficiently and appropriately. [B.6.5 without examination]
