Position of the course

The overall objective of the course 'Organizational Behavior' is to enhance the understanding of organizations on three levels: organization, group and individual.

Contents

In order to lead, to analyze, or to advise an organization, we are convinced that it is crucial to examine the behavior of people, the functioning of teams, groups and organizations. The course is divided into three major parts. The course offers an insight in organizational behavior by offering cases, insights and 'evidence' on three levels: the organization, the group and the individual level.

Initial competences

Final competences

- 1 The student gains insight in 'Organizational Behavior' as a field of study.
- 2 The student is able to reflect on organizational problems and events by making use of the knowledge and insights mentioned above.
- 3 Having an understanding in the management of organizations and the developments in the field.
- 4 The student is capable of applying theories to specific organisational behavior - cases.
- 5 The student is able to define and explain concepts, theories, and evidence in organizational behavior.

Calculation of the examination mark

Exam: 60%

Paper: 40%

When the student obtains less than 10/20 for at least one of the components, they can no longer obtain a pass mark for the course unit as a whole. If the total score does turn out to be a mark of 10 or more out of 20, this is reduced to the highest fail mark, 9/20.

If students pass the group assignment but not the exam, the points of the paper may be transferred to the second examination period. If students pass the exam but not the group assignment, the points of the exam can be transferred to the second examination period.

Students who eschew one or more parts of the assessment can no longer obtain a pass mark for the course unit. Should the final mark be higher than 7/20, it will be reduced to the highest non-tolerable mark (i.e. 7/20).

Not adhering to deadlines for the group assignment without valid and substantiated reasons (such as illness) will result in a zero for the group assignment.
